It was done in water color and the design and decorations were perfect. Unfortunately the map was so fine that it could be printed in New Orleans, they have been as a wall decoration. Being made many years later, the colors for that map are still coming in and friends are urging Lucille to have another printing of the map made to satisfy the demand.

1962

Have you wondered what things will be like in 1962? How much growth will there be in population? How many new homes, new stores and new industries will be built? Will there be new schools, hospitals and churches?

Answering these questions has become a major task in the electric utility industry. As our population increases, as new homes, schools and churches are built, the need for electricity also increases. And that need will be far greater in 1962 than it is today.

New electrical appliances and future conveniences must be considered too! For today's luxuries may well be tomorrow's necessities.

Right now our engineers are planning for five years in advance. Planning for 1962. Meeting the 1962 electrical needs will mean new generating units, new substations, poles, lines and all the other allied facilities necessary to have electricity at your command — the mere flip of a switch. To do this we must build in advance of the need. We must build for the future.

Just as today, an ample supply of dependable, low cost electricity will be available in 1962. And as always, it will be ready when you need it.
